Description

Acerola grows primarily in South America. Because of its looks, Acerola is often referred to as a cherry, even though these two fruits are not related at all. Acerola has an especially high Vitamin C content. The fruits we use have a vitamin c content of 17%.

Acerola has a slightly sour taste. It mixes well with apple, grape or orange juice. Acerola can also be used in cooking for desserts or as a condiment for game dishes.
